There is more than one reason advanced by the Columbia coach, but the principal one is that the American crew will be finade up entirely of college boys, averaging not more than twenty years of one, while the Englishmen will average at least thirty years. The latter, if anian says, are well matured in growth and strength, and this leaves no chance for the Yankees. Columbia's coach is loyal to his country, however, and hopes time will prove him wrong in his prediction. THE DATE IN RROOKLYN
